MSc in DIGITAL INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

Master of Science (MSc) awarded by the University of Innsbruck

Two years, full-time

In-depth training on digitalisation in international relations and digital technologies

Language of instruction: English

'The datafication of international affairs is on-going and becomes increasingly pervasive. The DIA, offered jointly by the Vienna School of International Studies and the University of Innsbruck, is among the first master programmes worldwide that deals with these epochal changes of our time. Students get exposed to the digitalisation of international relations; economics and law; learn how to deal with big data, acquire statistical and programming skills; and apply their knowledge in experiments, visualisations as well as strategies for political communication.'

Markus Kornprobst
Dean, Vienna School of International Studies

'The DIA is ideally suited to prepare tomorrow's leaders in diplomacy, politics, public administration, and academia for careers in digital environments. This joint programme of the Vienna School of International Studies and the University of Innsbruck offers a unique combination of teaching in two subject areas. First, the programme enhances the understanding of students for the impact that digitalisation has had in areas such as diplomacy, law, security or economics. Second, the programme allows students to acquire skills in state-of-the-art technologies and methods for generating and analysing digital data.'
